

I am writing a couple of short articles based on extending/correcting a recently published paper related to general relativity. Unfortunately I am not a good writer and, as such, I am looking for someone to turn my rough drafts into something more polished and suitable for submission to a physics journal. This would be a good project for a student or someone wanting a quick weekend job.

If you are interested this job please contact me at eksterterano@shaw.ca